The Web We've Woven

The Internet is not the only place where links and connections have been made. We've been zooming down our own information highway the past four years, creating our own web here at Lehigh.

We've developed intellectually and socially while pursuing our goals. It is now time to marvel at our accomplishments as we view the various vignettes recalling our transformation from awkward freshmen to seniors preparing for the of our undergraduate years.

We did not need computer screens, hard drives or modems; nor did we have to be literate in high-tech computer jargon to establish these connections. Our voices were our modems, our minds our hard drives and our faces our screens.

We are each a link leading to greater knowledge. As a community of passionate, motivated leaders, we've helped open doors for each other. Our dedication to learning is responsible for our success. We breathe knowledge.

We've become a strongly woven web of ideas and aspirations which have been spinning in motion since we began at Lehigh.

Each day we've added links to our pages, links that tell of our college years. We've added color to our palettes and our designs are laced with intricate . There is vibrant movement in our minds.

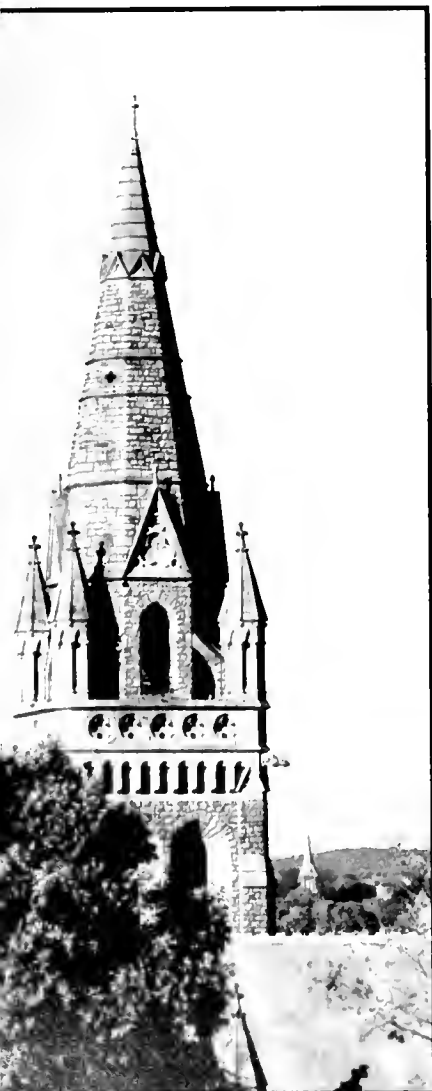

Each of our pages linked together unites us. Be it through , music or we all share at least one link, one story, that is Lehigh.

Click on any one of our names to visit the places we've been and the we've shared. We've made memories, established friendships, acquired knowledge and learned from our mistakes while triumphing over our fears.

Open this memoir and explore our hearts and minds. Travel the roads on which we've driven and the waters into which we dove. View the horizons we've striven to reach while transforming our dreams into realities.

Journey back through the past four years of Lehigh history, our history, where each of our links make up the web we've woven at Lehigh.

Year in Review

When we look back and remember the year we graduated from Lehigh, which particular links will we remember?

For the world, it was a year of mixed emotions. We watched the Olympics with joy, undeterred by terrorism. We wondered about the preparations being made for the future: Hong Kong under China, a European common market.

It was also a year of elections. Russia elected Yeltsin, Israel elected Netanyahu and the U.S. re-elected Bill Clinton.

It was a year of great strides. Madeleine Albright became the first female Secretary of State of the USA. Users flocked to the Net, forcing governments to establish legislation tailored for the new medium. Scientists cloned the first mammal.

The Dave Matthews Band, the Fugees and Jewel brought a new caliber of creativity to the music forum. The film industry seemed to reach back into old genres and create new masterpieces with The English Patient, Evita and the resurrection of the Star Wars trilogy.

We at Lehigh saw the face of our campus change with the opening of the Zoellner Arts Center, the addition of a fountain in front of Packard Lab, a terrace added to the U.C., and a plethora of new parking meters...painted fluorescent green?

Most importantly, it's the year we graduated from Lehigh.

World News

The past year has been a period of sweeping changes. While some areas of the world have made great strides toward peace, other sections continue to struggle. Israeli leader Benjamin Netanyahu, continuing the work of Yitzak Rabin, has worked with Palestinian leader Yassar Arafat in developing a peace accord between their people. Other countries in the world, however, are still mired in conflict, including war-torn Yugoslavia, where a lasting settlement has yet to be reached.

In the summer of 1997, Great Britain's 99 year lease of Hong Kong expired. Hong Kong became an administrative region of The People's Republic of China. The rest of the world is waiting to see how the change in government will affect Hong Kong's economy and the rights of its citizens.

In the summer of 1996, Atlanta hosted the Centennial Olympiad. Athletes from around the world represented their countries and some were able to bring home medals. Michael Johnson (pictured on previous page) took home gold medals in the 200 and 400 meter dashes. The women's gymnastics team won the overall competition. The festivities and goodwill of the games were unexpectedly interrupted when a bomb exploded in Centennial Park, killing two people and injuring many others.

President Clinton and Vice President Al Gore were re-elected in November of 1996, defeating the Republican ticket of Bob Dole and Jack Kemp. President Clinton promised to focus on strengthening the economy and lowering the crime rate. Clinton appointed, and Congress approved, Madeleine Albright as Secretary of State. This is the highest rank ever held by a woman in the U.S. Government.

In the world of sports, the Green Bay Packers beat the New England Patriots 35-21 to win Super Bowl XXXI. The New York Yankees were successful in winning their 23rd overall World Series championship by defeating the Atlanta Braves in six games.

Communiversi Day

This year, Lehigh attempted to create its own version of Woodstock---academia style. Students from all groups were dismissed from classes to participate in "community-building" activities. Music, language, food and people flooded the lawn of the UC and basked in the warmth of the autumn day. The highlight of the event came as students and faculty gathered to hear the acclaimed writer, Alice Walker, speak on her work, as well as on human relationships.

Lower Grace was filled to the rafters with students entertained by Steven Wright's deadpan delivery.

Features

Features—the events we will remember, the memories we share together, the links formed among us.

In the fall we enter Lehigh with enthusiasm for classes and hope for what's to come. Freshman move-in always symbolizes a big step for the new class. Morning tailgates show the spirit and excitement we share for our university, as early risers enjoy food and festivities before the game.

As the semester continues, formals, Halloween parties and weekend getaways fill our gaps of time from Friday to Sunday. Toward the middle of November Lehigh-Lafayette comes and faithful Lehigh fans flock to The game in the freezing winter weather in hopes of another victory. The semester ends with finals and the beginning of the holiday season. The decorations are hard to enjoy until the last examination ends, but they are a beautiful sight as we leave for home.

The spring semester starts with a longing for warm weather. Trips to the tropics for Spring Break are always popular. After break, Greek Week begins as new fraternity and sorority pledges become full-fledged members.

These events are features of our Lehigh life. Years from now we will remember the good times shared outside of class with friends, brothers, sisters, faculty and parents.

Freshman Move-In

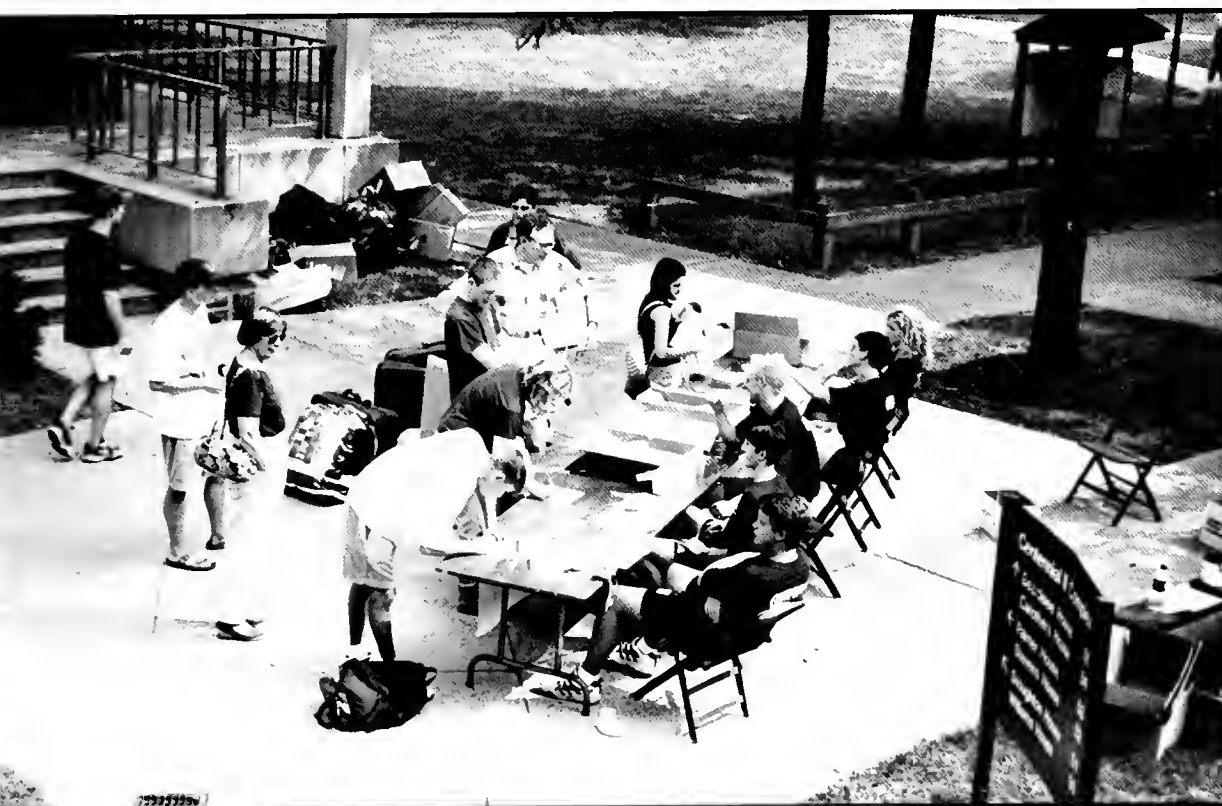

Anticipation always runs high at the freshman move-in. This first step into college life brings new experiences and new friends. Gryphons, Greeks, faculty and staff are always around to lend a hand with all the luggage and to make life a little bit easier. Orientation is a unique time to become more acquainted with Lehigh life and to also gain a feel for the campus.

Celebrating Twenty-Five Years of Lehigh Women

In 1970 Lehigh was an entirely different world. Freshmen were required to wear beanies all year long. Jackets and ties were required at dinner. The Mountaintop Campus, Fair-Mart, Rauch Business Center and the Arts Center did not exist. There were very few women's bathrooms on campus, mainly because there weren't any women undergraduates at Lehigh.

In 1971, Lehigh was still a very different world. Gone were the beanies. Gone were the dress requirements at the dining halls. There weren't as many buildings on campus as there are now, and there was still a lack of women's bathrooms on campus.

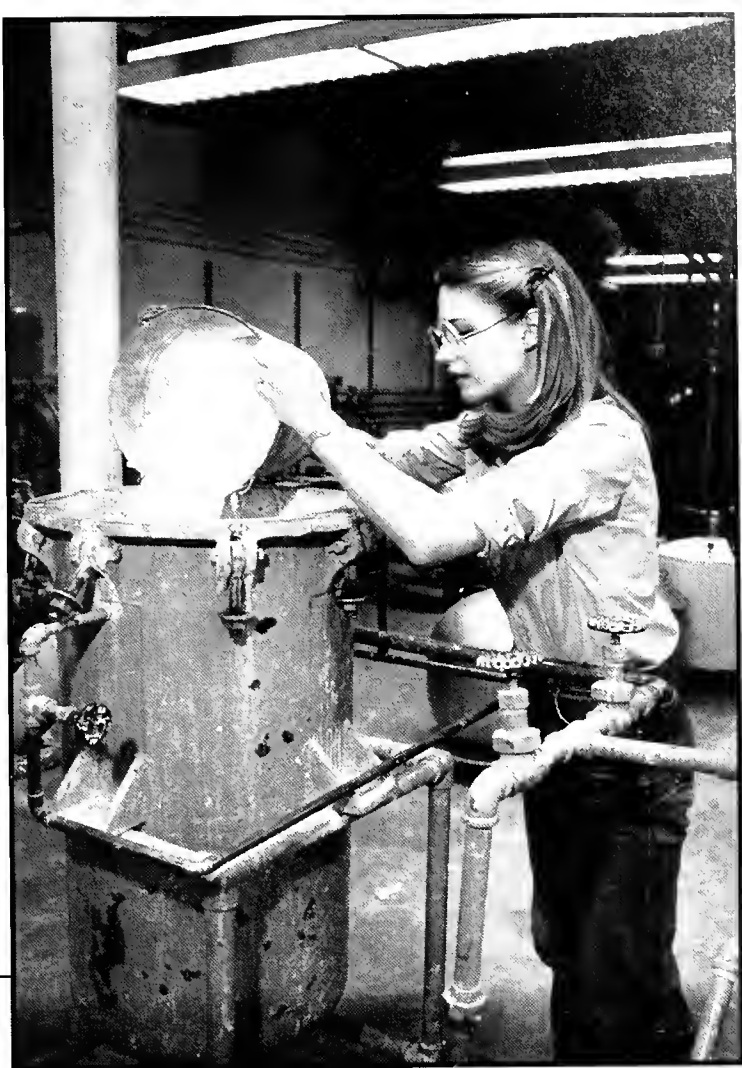

On September 7, 1971, 169 women enrolled as Lehigh undergraduates, and the University has never been the same.

Patricia Chase, '74, was a member of this first class of women. She recalled that she didn't like being reminded that women were just an experiment during the first few years of co-education, but she was never the type to give in to the victim mentality. She felt that having men as classmates and friends was a positive experience.

A few years later, after she had graduated from Lehigh with degrees in Fine Arts and French and was working for Facilities Planning and Renovation, an office of which she is now the director, she was introduced to a trustee whose only comment to her was, "I voted against you." She replied simply, "You lost."

Twenty-five years later, we are glad women broke down the barriers of gender at Lehigh and began broadening and diversifying the quality of education. Few undergraduates today could even begin to fathom the idea of Lehigh without women. Our lives would lack diversity. Our conversations would lack perspective. And we would all still be wearing jackets, ties and beanies.

New Additions

This year many new structures were added to the face of the Lehigh University Campus. New plazas were constructed in front of Packard Lab and the Alumni Memorial building. Antique lighting was added throughout the campus bringing a beautiful appearance each nightfall.

The Zoellner Arts Center reached completion in January as the first concert echoed in Baker theatre for the beginning of the preview season. Zoellner symbolizes Lehigh's commitment to expanding music and theatre programs. As the doors to ZAC opened, the theatre department said goodbye to their old home, the Wilbur Drama building. The music department moved out of Lamberton opening the possibilities for Lehigh to develop plans for a Lehigh Pub.

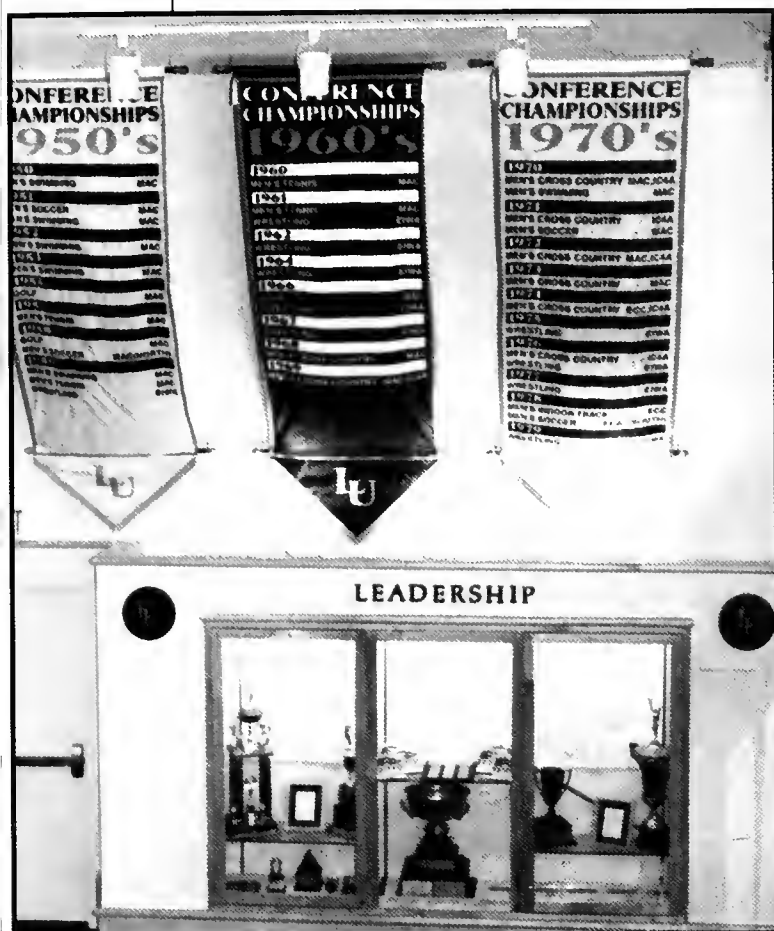

An addition began on the back of Taylor Gym at the same time the Hall of Fame reached completion.

Getaways

Below: Jamie Hurd and Julie DeMoyer use Pacing Break to escape to the excitement of Mardi Gras in New Orleans

Imagine this: you have two tests next week, a paper and a presentation. It seems like everything is getting out of control and the stress level has just shot through the roof. Professors are giving you nightmares, you can't sleep, and the sight of a classroom has you ready to explode. It's time for a getaway. It really doesn't even matter where. Going to Great Adventure at the Jersey Shore, escaping to Mardi Gras in New Orleans over Pacing Break, making a trip to New York City to see a concert on a Saturday night, or simply going to the Lehigh Valley Mall to shop. To get away from life and reality for just a moment makes life seem that much better. All that work really isn't that bad, right?

Remember your first parents' weekend? Friday night, you went out planning to take it easy, come home early, set your alarm for 8 a.m., and be ready for Mom and Dad by 9 a.m. Next morning, you hear an all-too-familiar voice on the otherside of your dorm room door. Did you set your alarm?!? Your eyes bulge open, dry and painfully. The clock reads 8:59 a.m. Anxiety! The voice calls to you again, followed by repeated knocks on the door that echo in your now aching head.

"Honey? Hello? Are you in there? Wake-up."

Quick! You survey the room. Clothing is spread out

Perfect! You pull the comforter over the bed and pat it hard, until it resembles made. With one or two sweeps of your foot, the clothes on the floor find their way under your bed. Clean!

The clock reads 9:01 a.m. You're ready to face the 'rents.

*A*lthough we are ever a part of Lehigh's woven web, some of us choose to form links on other continents. We leave the comfort and conventionality of our home page to explore other worlds and ourselves.

Whether it is for the summer, a semester or even an entire year, the adventures of studying abroad, with all the various fears and anecdotes, will remain etched in our memories as part of the Lehigh experience.

France

A country that through its beauty seems to invoke all the qualities of good, in energy and emotions, represented aesthetically through the Tuleries at twilight, Monet's garden, Montmartre, Notre Dame, the Arc de Triomphe, the Louvre. And Paris at the heart of it all, a sensual city filled with metaphors of freedom, love, pride, grace, charm and courage.

Candace Lombardi locked away in the Tower of London.

Formals

In this quiet town of Bethlehem, it's no secret we invent our own private society in which to bask and glow. And what more glamorous an event can you think of to indulge in than a formal?

Whether the look is long or short that year, double-breasted or single, it seems that preparation plays a large part when it comes to yet another Lehigh tradition. Heels and ties are borrowed, shoes shined and dresses steamed. Once at the grand event, the feelings of anticipation subside and we are filled with energy of friends sharing the night. Even absorbed in the music and conversation, one stops to take mental snapshots to store in memory.

Think back and remember laughing with friends over an accident with food, a horrible date, a cheesy song or memorable dance. Or perhaps you had a tender moment when, after swaying to a slow song, you looked into a pair of caring eyes.

December is known for its holiday spirit in the Lehigh Valley. Tourists flock to Bethlehem to see the Moravian buildings with wreaths on the doors and candles burning in the windows. Christmas trees shine on light poles off-campus and advent candles sit on the tops of bridges.

On Lehigh campus Packer Chapel is decorated with wreaths on the front doors, and the entrance to campus is marked with a large shining tree in front of the flagpoles.

Tailgates are a welcome break from the stresses of class and life we all put ourselves through at Lehigh. They are an excuse to travel to the other side of the South Mountain, leaving behind books, academic buildings, concrete and worries, enjoying instead the grassy fields underfoot, the clouds overhead, the burgers cooking on the grills and the sound of music blaring over laughter.

They are also a setting for the unexpected and the unusual. Just when you think you've seen everything that can possibly happen, someone will jump off the top of a van into the crowd below, or a band will start playing, letting people dance to music a little different from the same ten CD's that always seem to find their way into Lehigh CD players.

Some houses decide that nothing beats throwing down a plastic sheet and flinging themselves through beer suds and mud in order to get excited for the games. Other people prefer to simply walk the dog and take it all in.

However tailgates are celebrated, the reasons behind the celebration are the same. Students can enjoy life for a while. They can experience the outdoors, other than when stumbling down the mountain on the way to a 7:55. They can do something a little different. Even talking to friends about something other than calculus, finance, or all the reading you have left to do for the big report, is a welcome relief.

Tailgates are an escape from Lehigh and an escape from life. They keep us sane.

What gorgeous smiles on such a cold day in November.

Gone forever are the days of unbridled mirth surrounding Lehigh-Lafayette. The parties and the games still remain, but the aura surrounding the game is somewhat diminished.

Freshmen are told story after story of how things were done in the old days, of the great deeds performed in the past. Pieces of goalposts from games past are pointed to as they hang on the walls of fraternities. Pictures of the chaos surrounding the game are run in The Brown and White. The "History of the Game" is hawked at the bookstore and the mobile bookstore at Goodman Stadium. But gone is the fervor. Gone is the boisterous and unrestrained school spirit.

What are we left with then?

We are left with a football team that goes to great lengths to keep their fans on the edge of their seats as the game draws to a close, somehow always managing to pull a brilliant victory out of the jaws of defeat. We are left with students screaming for their team, jumping up and pounding each other on the back whenever we score. We are left with our alumni, visions of what we will be in 20 years.

The cheerleaders excite the crowd and give encouragement to our team.

The Marching 97 adds to the spirit of the game by playing traditional songs like The Old Silver Goblet and spell out Lehigh when marching at half time.

Lehigh fans cheer the football team on, hoping for another touchdown.

THEATRE

One-act plays was the theme of the Theatre Department for the fall semester. "Black Comedy", "Identity Crisis" and "Dutchman" were the last productions in Wilbur before the theatre department made its move to Zoellner at the end of the semester.

Wilbur Drama Workshop was the home of theatre since nineteen seventy-four. Lehigh University will now have expanded capabilities for future performances in the new thirty-three million dollar arts center constructed next to the Rauch Business Center on the old location of Taylor Stadium. The center holds the Baker theatre which can seat over one thousand people and the Diamond theatre which can hold approximately three hundred people.

The arts center also has modern classrooms, a black box theatre, numerous practice rooms and the department office. There are facilities for set construction and a modern reception area for intermission where beverages and food can be served. With these new opportunities and space, Lehigh has more options for future performances.

"Black Comedy" featured actors David Tull as Brindsley, Melissa Caspary as Carol, Donna Cennamano as Miss Furnival, Derek Boru Moore as Colonel Melkett, Billy Pietragallo as Harold, Vanessa Smith as Clea, Gregory Mihalik as Schuppanzigh and Graham Stanford as Bamberger.

Greek Week

Though the weather may have been running unseasonably hot and cold, Greek Week fundraising, laughter, music and parties continued in style. Vibrant colors and old traditions were mixed with new ideas. Sammy's bed races were held in the sorority parking lot, while Phi Sig invented their own Grand Prix. Of course, there were still some old stand-by events to be enjoyed. Once again Greeks participated in Opening Ceremonies, Beta's Greekers and Alpha Gam's "Singled Out." This year's champions were AOP (Alpha Omicron Pi) and ΔΦ (Delta Phi). But most would agree the ultimate goal was camaraderie and fun. All in all, everyone came out on top, as the Greeks raised thousands of dollars for their national charities.

Spring Break

Spring, that time of year when the snow melts, the flowers bloom and Lehigh students migrate south in search of warm weather, sun-tans and a break from the everyday stress of life at Lehigh.

After all, how can waking up to icy roads and early morning tests compare to warm breezes and fun-filled days spent with friends? How can late nights spent studying Calculus in the library compare to late nights partying with friends in far away places?

Spring Break is one of the few times we have to spend with our friends outside of classes and without the ever-present stress of tests, due dates and studying. It is something planned out months in advance, looked forward to with intense anticipation, enjoyed to the fullest and remembered forever.

International Bazaar

Exploring our world, its diversity and the beautiful cultures it offers is the theme of the International Bazaar. Culture flows from our friends and peers daily, but it is officially recognized every year at the spring celebration at Lehigh. With the support of the Study Abroad Department, students from many international groups participate to make this occasion special. Festive dances, international fashion, ancient legends, food, music and wedding ceremonies are just some of the offerings found in the Maginnes Plaza. The Bazaar gives the Lehigh community the chance to come together to remember our cultures and to celebrate the diverse population Lehigh has to offer.

The macarena dance appeared once again this year, this time at Lehigh. Everyone who attended the bazaar had the opportunity to participate in many cultural activities.

Left: Every student had an opportunity to participate, including this group performing an African dance.

Diversity Among Us

This Chinese Dragon Dance was performed by a group of Taiwanese graduate students.

Community Service

It's a side of everyone's social and academic life that many people don't see. Many groups at Lehigh participate in community service activities. The best known of these fundraisers occur during Greek Week when fraternities and sororities raise money for their charitable organizations. But there is also the Good Scholar Election and fundraisers of other groups.

These groups and others, including the Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity and the Lehigh Christian fellowship, help the community in ways other than by simply providing financial support. They clean up litter around Bethlehem, help out local shelters and lend a helping hand when possible. The S.T.A.R. program pairs Lehigh students with local middle and grade school children, providing mentors and big brothers and sisters to these youth.

Lehigh students give of their time to say thank you for all they have and to give something back to others.

Helping others isn't always a glamorous task, but it is one that is appreciated and well worth doing.

Academics

We came to Lehigh as unsure freshmen, not knowing what the future held for us, but confident in our ability to meet whatever demands the world might place upon us.

We shared a common initiation in Freshman English, a course required of all. Some entered with trepidation, fearing the realm of the written word when their strengths lay in numbers. Others entered embracing the opportunity to learn more about life and humanity.

From this beginning, our paths branched. Some students felt the call of the biology lab, and haven't left Williams since. Others decided the future lay in business, and now know the kiosk managers on the first floor of Rauch by name. Still others decided that there is nothing in the world quite so exciting as early morning Engineering classes; we feel sorry for you.

Wherever our paths may have taken us, we know they will lead to a bright future. However, by looking behind us at the ground already covered we see the works of our past years, and in them, the formation of the people we've become. Our work has shaped and molded our minds, forming us into the capable people we are today. This is Lehigh's legacy to us.

Epitome: President's Message

There will come a time when the Class of '97 will seem as ancient as that other Class of '97 (1897) seems today. As soon as we cross the line in three years to the next century, we will turn the pages of history to a new chapter, and we will look back with nostalgia to the vanished twentieth century.

As this class approaches graduation in June, thoughts of an exciting but uncertain future mingle with memories of the Lehigh years—mostly fond memories, but also memories of the pain that often accompanies learning. As the years go by these memories will soften, and Lehigh will be credited with the achievements of the Class of '97. If history is any guide, those achievements will be very substantial.

If you members of the Class of '97 preserve the traditions of this university, you will always feel the tug of loyalty to Lehigh, and do your part to be sure that the next generation of Lehigh students has the same experiences that made your college years memorable. We're counting on you to keep our traditions healthy, and help us meet the new challenges of the approaching century as well.

This building is much too pretty to be on the main campus, where ever can we find it? For those of you who have ever had to park on the Mountaintop Campus, you know this building all too well. Named Iacocca Hall and located next to the commuter parking lots on the other campus, not many people get to experience the true beauty of this structure.

College of Arts & Sciences

The College of Arts and Sciences contains 18 departments that offer a diversity of majors. Students can take advantage of a world of opportunities to enhance the learning experience across a wide range of disciplines at many academic levels. Lehigh has several fine laboratories that are balanced by the newly built Zoellner Arts Center. Immersion in these studies results in experiential learning, such as the Study Abroad Program.

The college stresses writing, communication and critical thinking, and urges students to become engaged in their studies as soon as possible. Freshmen must take a class that requires meeting with their advisors once a week and a seminar class involving interactive learning. This helps them develop an ownership of their learning, which they should carry throughout their lives.

What is Coppee Hall used for these days? That happens to be the question of the hour. We waited patiently for a student to walk in or out of the building so that we could ask, "Why are YOU going to Coppee?" But we saw no one. If anyone knows please get back to us.

For all of you tragically unhip students looking for the next new place to study please pay attention. Rachel DeLoach is a trendsetter without even trying to be one. She is well aware that the Ulrich Center is the place to study, especially when you are scared to walk into Fairchild-Martindale by yourself.

"MMMM... You know what I could really go for right about now, Chocolate Pudding." No one really knows what this fine young man is pondering, perhaps his navel. We do know, however, that he is doing something most students do whenever they get the chance. He is enjoying one of the rare days that the north side of the mountain is blessed with, a near perfect weather day.

What is Fairchild-Martindale? It is much more than a mere library. It is where any upperclassman who is anyone meets study groups, procrastinates with friends, or just tries to hunt down someone to copy lecture notes from. Other pluses of the famous Fair-Mart are the computers that are all always in use, the vending machines in the basement, and the fact that it is a hop, skip and a jump away from Wawa: munchie heaven.

Modern Foreign Language

Samual Butler, a British writer, once said that "Every man's work, whether it be literature or music or pictures or architecture or anything else is always a portrait of himself."

An interpretation of this statement is that in order to spend your life doing one thing you must be part of the activity, becoming in-tune with the purpose for which you are working.

The departments of Art and Architecture, Journalism and Communication, English, Music, Theatre and Modern Foreign Languages, although spread throughout campus, are connected by many aspects in their curricula. Everyone involved in these departments, whether they are building, writing, reading, composing, acting or translating, has his or her heart and soul invested into sharing a love of their respective fields with students.

The presence and activity of these departments on campus add something that Lehigh has often been criticized for lacking: culture. These students cultivate their natural talents by dedicating free time and energy to their current endeavor.

Biology

The philosophers Democritus (Sixth century B.C.) and Rene Descartes (1596-1650) have both taught that the way to knowledge is by separating things into their component parts. This theory was revived in the nineteenth century by the entire philosophical community in order to discuss the interrelatedness of all of the sciences. The departments of Physics, Chemistry, Biology, Earth and Environmental Sciences, Mathematics and Psychology are related by this Theory of Reductionism.

Earth and Environmental Sciences observe ecosystems and the impact of the ever-changing atmosphere. Psychologists study minds and brains, their development and how they help people interact. Brain experiments involve exploring various fields of biology. An organism's composition and functioning depends on chemical interactions, the molecules of which follow laws defined by physics. Mathematics uses quantitative methods to analyze these areas of study.

The Theory of Reductionism specifically addresses how all of these fields are related to one another because they indirectly define the basics of life. Information from one of these departments invariably depends on what the other departments study.

These departments encourage students to learn how and why things work and to investigate application of the theories. Laboratory experiments and field work strengthen and broaden students' education through hands-on experience.

Philosophy

Through the investigation and study of topics in the departments of Philosophy, History, Political Science, International Relations, Sociology and Anthropology and Religion, the diversity and interdependence of the world become apparent.

When our symbiotic nature is recognized and appreciated, barriers built by ignorance are lowered. When the cultural and political facets of a nation are better understood, positive and constructive interaction can take place between people and their government.

Some students study the philosophical clashes between Destutt de Tracy's ideology and Napoleon Bonaparte's authoritarianism, concluding that these differences had costly political, social and economic effects. They gain insight into the inter-subjectivity of language and life.

Other students examine the differences of their own cultures and religions at such events as Communiversity Day and Tao Day. They gain a common ground between them.

The Humanities are about what makes us human. They bring us together.

International Relations

The Game Room has stress-relieving opportunities as this student has discovered. Although many students hold group meetings or study individually at Ulrich, the student center does provide distractions.

College of Business & Economics

Many current societal problems involve decision-making, conflict resolution, and efficient management of human, financial and physical resources. Studying business and economics provides a strong basis for understanding and developing solutions to these problems.

Students develop analytical and communication skills to positively manage decision-making. The in-depth study of business processes, such as accounting information systems, financial flows and markets, management processes, and their impact on business and social issues prepares students for the increasingly complex and globally competitive environment of the 21st century.

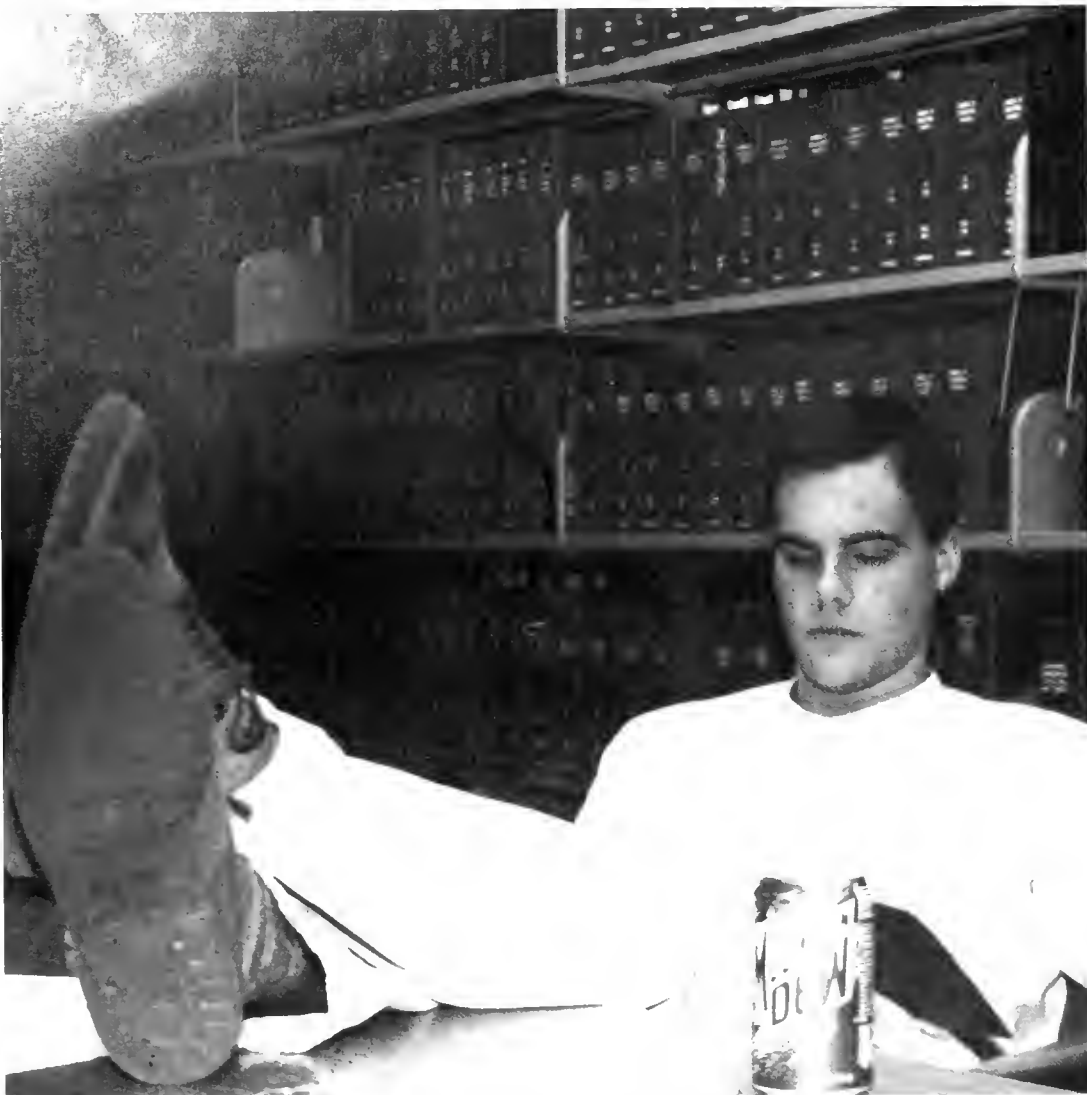

Fairchild Martindale is soooo popular these days that these two students couldn't find a seat anywhere but here! It must be a Sunday night or sometime during Four O'Clocks. Never fear, this minor setback did not prevent them from getting their work done.

Whether you are a business major or not, you have probably been in Rauch. Recitations for most classes are held in the basement. On your way to these productive sessions be sure to pick up a coffee to keep you awake. Rauch is one of the buildings that holds classes and is also lucky enough to have an eatery too.

Where did my Management spreadsheet go? All Business majors must complete tons of projects and group presentations, and most of them require knowledge of computers. Perhaps this is why there are several computer labs in the bottom of Rauch. You can feel free to whine till your heart is content because when you do get into trouble there is often no one else around to help, or to hear you scream.

Where can you find business students at Lehigh? You can find all business majors at their home away from home: the Rauch Business Center. Although it is no longer the newest building on campus, because Zoellner has taken its place as the baby of campus buildings, Rauch is not forgotten. It also houses the Deans of the College of Business and Economics.

Sugar, sugar, I need more sugar, now. Derek Sager tries to stay awake during a finals cram session with his caffeinated carbonated sugar-laden can of Mountain Dew. As an accounting major, Derek needs to effectively manage his time.

The Department of Business offers majors in finance, management, accounting and marketing. Finance involves investing and helping companies efficiently allocate money. Management involves organizing, leading and motivating groups of people to achieve a common goal. Accountants provide accurate record keeping of a business' daily transactions. Marketing, which requires creativity and the ability to position products in order to sell them, is crucial to world trade.

A new major in the Business Department is being offered to freshmen this year in information management systems. This is a more computer-oriented program for information technology and teaching people to manage and organize their resources. The addition of this major portrays Lehigh's flexibility in responding to employer demands.

Economics is the study of principles that govern the efficient allocation of resources. The dual nature of economics, technical and humanistic, is reflected by the fact that Lehigh offers an economics degree in the College of Arts and Sciences and the College of Business and Economics.

Where in the world is Carmen San Diego? Well, we looked and looked and our last hope was these benches found right outside the Rauch Business Center, but there is no one here. It is winter in South Bethlehem and this has forced nature lovers indoors to protect themselves from the harsh winter winds. When spring arrives, however, this courtyard will be packed to the gills with students and possibly Carmen San Diego, too, in hopes of enjoying the lovely weather. This courtyard is so popular because business majors must not travel far away from Rauch, except when taking advantage of the Business school's International Study Abroad Program.

No, this is not just a random hallway! These tables are THE place to sit and wait out the time between classes, just ask any business major because oh yeah, the hallway is in Rauch. If he wanted to take his mind off his work he could stroll over and pick up the latest copy of The Brown and White to find out what is going around campus in the coming days.

College of Engineering & Applied Sciences

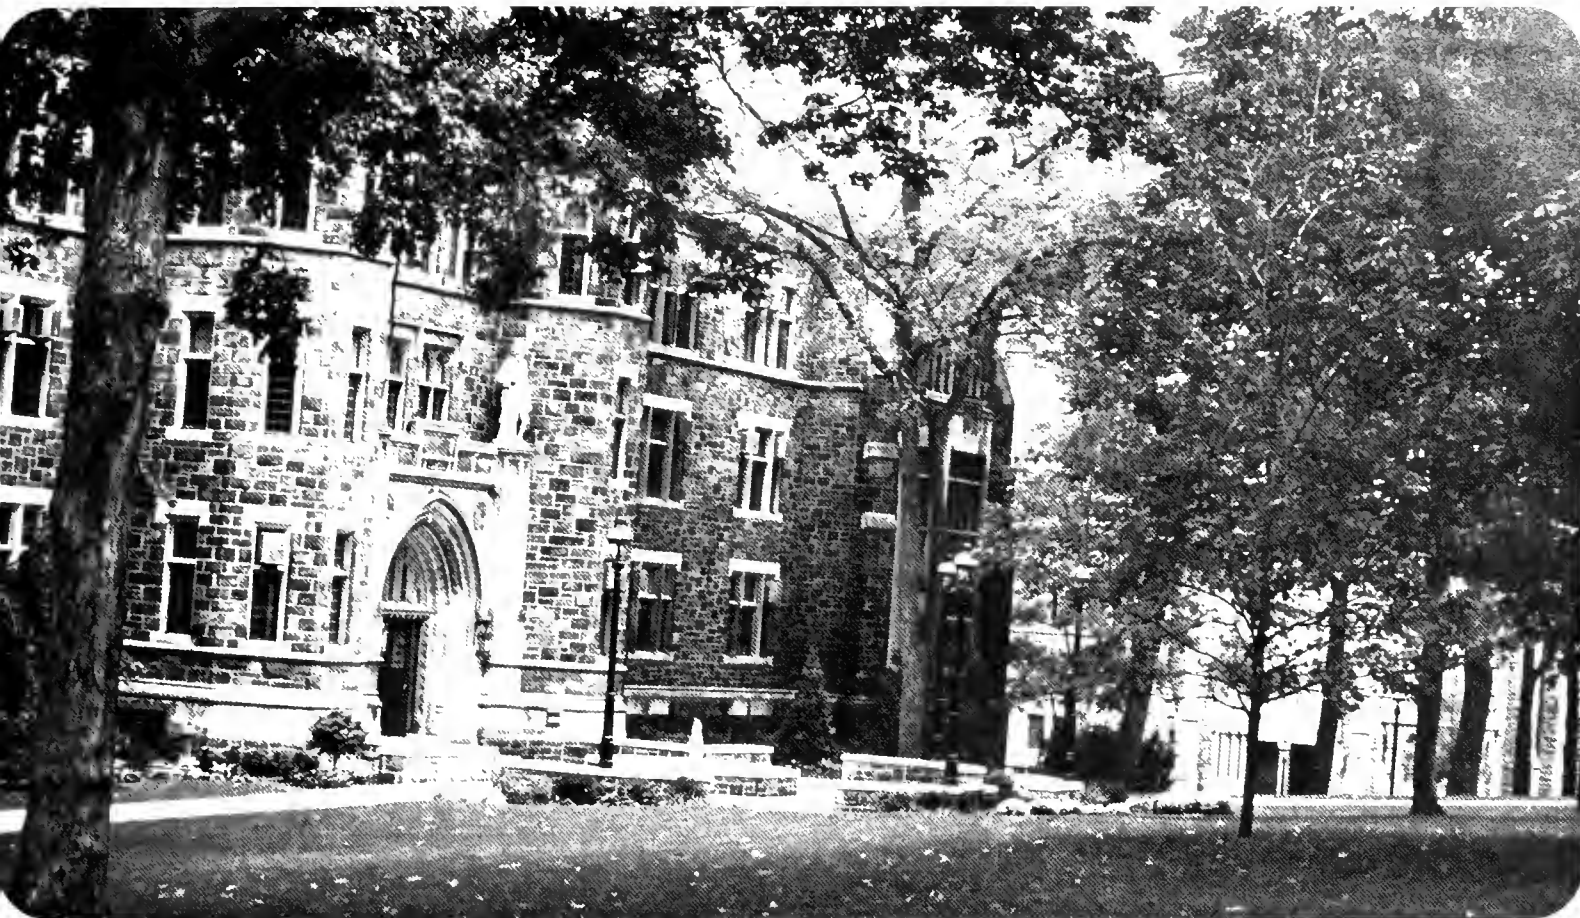

Majoring in engineering requires devoting time to the practical application of math and science. What does the definition mean? The “engineer,” one of the nicknames of our Alma Mater, is not a “glorified road crewman” who spends hours every day improving the technology in our world. Engineering encompasses a wide variety of fields including: civil, mechanical, electrical, chemical, material systems and industrial engineering.

Lehigh has been proud to be called the Engineers. Its graduates now work in companies all over the U.S. and some also work for the famous Bethlehem Steel. The university is proud of its quality programs in all fields of engineering, which uphold its impeccable reputation.

Am I late for Class? Lehigh's course load has gotten the better of this student. He doesn't even have the energy to climb up the hills to get to his room! I think he probably stayed up past his bedtime to make sure that he finished his programming assignment on time.

Have I ever seen this building before? I don't think it can possibly be on campus! Ding Ding Ding we have a winner. Mohler Lab, which houses the Department of Industrial Engineering, is technically located just off campus. Its official address is 200 W. Packer Avenue but if you are looking for it, it is located adjacent to Birkel Avenue.

I think I can, I think I can. Dave Eckroth, a chemical engineering major, struggles and succeeds with his studies. Lehigh has a reputation for its high academic standards and is famous for the quality engineering graduates it produces. Students will be proud of themselves for completing all of the work required for their degrees at such a prestigious university.

Packard really is a perky place, promise! Even though engineering classes are held in this building it is still safe to venture into the foreign land called Packard Lab. All the talk of additions to campus this year have been centered around Zoellner, but the fountain in front of this happy place is an addition that everyone noticed and enjoyed. Day and night you can observe engineers, with big smiles on their faces, anywhere in this building, their home away from home.

Material Science

Civil engineers are often known as the "bridge builders," who spend time working with the crusher and hydraulic tank in Fritz Lab. They are highly involved with structural safety, contamination and soil and water movement.

Mechanical engineering, one of the broadest engineering fields, deals with systems for energy conversion, material transport and the control of motion and forces. Mechanical systems are used by the health care and transportation industries.

Electrical engineers spend their time working with computers and other electrical machines that are among the new inventions of the 20th century. By looking at circuit designs they try to find new ways to improve communication.

Chemical engineering requires students to spend many days in the facilities on Mountaintop campus. They produce physical or chemical changes in fluids for industrial purposes including pollution management, energy resource development and the national defense programs.

Materials systems engineers study the basic building blocks of everything we use daily. They seek to determine the strongest and most reliable materials by using tests based on conductivity and deformation.

Finally, the industrial engineers incorporate business to supervise job functions performed by industries. They look for the most efficient way to perform a job or lay out machines, which will save the industries tons of time and money.

What makes this building so special? Lewis Lab, formerly called the Physics Building, is the only structure on campus to have its name changed while still keeping its original purpose. As is apparent from its previous name, Lewis Lab is home of the Physics department. It does, however, serve another very important function on campus. Physics requirements for engineering majors are the only reason any of them can be found outside of Packard Lab during class hours.

Activities

How do students spend their free time at Lehigh? There is a stereotypical answer to this question--they all party. But like all stereotypes, this answer substitutes prejudice for truth. The fact is students at Lehigh spend lots of time in clubs and associations: The Brown and White's press nights, the early morning Crew workouts, the productions of Mustard and Cheese, the chilly slopes the ski team bears and the late night music of WLVR are evidence of the Lehigh students' dedication.

Being active in something outside of classes brings students a sense of enjoyment and fuller lives. Whether it is the run-and-smash of Rugby, or the graceful pirouette in Dance, or the helping at the soup kitchens in SAID, students all gain experiences of triumph and delight not soon forgotten.

Other students find a sense of community in one of Lehigh's many social and religious groups. The Jewish Student Center, the Korean Students Association, the Gryphon Society and Alpha Phi Omega all provide a supportive atmosphere for the participating students.

There are many opportunities at Lehigh to pursue different interests. The experiences reaped from them are unforgettable.

GRYPHON SOCIETY

Me&M Stoney Acres Programming Taylor

"I am one person. What can one person do??"

During training, the idea of the power of one was instilled within each and every one of us. As the year progressed, it became more and more obvious what one person's efforts can do. Through programming, duty and every day interaction we were able to make a difference this year.

As the 30th anniversary of the Gryphon Society approaches, we would like to take this opportunity to thank all of the gryphons of the 1996-1997 academic year. Your hard work and dedication not only to your halls but to the Lehigh community does not go unnoticed and unappreciated. Thanks for another year of commitment and service.

The Newman Council provides religious, service and social activities for the Catholic students at Lehigh University. The past year, the Council has sponsored dance lessons for students and faculty, Study Breaks during 4 o'clocks, open houses during parents' weekend and for freshmen, and an end of the year picnic. At Christmas time, they sponsor a giving tree where people can donate gifts to be given to local non-profit agencies. Each month, members of the Council cook at a local homeless shelter. During Lent, the Newman Center sponsors Lenten Fellowship dinners where a speaker discusses issues relevant to the faith.

SAIV, Students Active in Volunteerism, is an organization dedicated to community service. In the past year, SAIV has organized both one-day service projects and fund raisers for non-profit organizations. Service projects run by SAIV this year include: helping move a homeless shelter, organizing a giving tree for needy organizations and facilitating a Mini Day of Caring. The members of SAIV are dedicated to helping others through volunteerism.

SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS

The Senior Class Officers have worked hard this past year to unite the Class of 1997. We would like to take this time to thank all the members of the senior class for their support. We wish you all the best in your future endeavors. May your memories of Lehigh and the class of 1997 grow fonder with each passing day.

ALPHA PHI OMEGA

The Alpha Psi chapter of the Alpha Phi Omega National Service Fraternity recently celebrated its 61st anniversary at Lehigh University. The brothers of the chapter are dedicated to service and have helped with countless service projects over the past year. Some of the projects include moving a homeless shelter, running a blood drive, volunteering at the local chapter of the American Red Cross, participating at a Mini Day of Caring and volunteering at Community Interaction Day. The fraternity has continued to grow over the years and currently has over 40 members. They have continued to uphold the tradition of leadership, friendship and service at Lehigh

University, in the Lehigh Valley and in the nation by performing over 1000 volunteer hours per year.

SKI TEAM

The 1996-1997 season saw the men's "A" Team take second place overall in the New Jersey Collegiate Ski Conference. The women's team, composed of freshmen and sophomores, finished a solid fourth place overall. Junior Jim Shea placed second overall in the conference with Steve Schmidt following in third. Both teams went on to the USCSA Middle-Atlantic Regional Championships where sophomore Porter Stowell finished an impressive second place in the Giant Slalom. With no graduating seniors, both teams look forward to being a strong force on the slopes next year. A very special thank you to the best advisor in the world, Pat Potack. The team would not be complete without her.

KOREAN STUDENTS ASSOCIATION

KSA is not only a cultural society, but a family to its members. Comprised of many international students, KSA has become the "home away from home" where many students can share similar backgrounds, values and cultures. For other members in the community, KSA has introduced various aspects of Korean culture. By sharing each other's joys and sorrows, especially through the upperclassmen, "big brothers and big sisters," we are always looking after the younger members. KSA has built a network of close friendship and family.

The Lehigh Gymnastics Club has progressed in the past two years into the competitive environment. Without a coach nor our own equipment, we were still able to host our first invitational on March 23, 1997. We are proud of our current accomplishments, however it will not end there. This gymnastics club will continue to strive in longing for some recognition. As president of the gymnastics club, I could not be more pleased with the dedication these women have expressed. I know the growth of this club will continue throughout the years and I am grateful to have had the opportunity to head such an organization.

EPITOME

Obviously, we are the people who put Lehigh's yearbook together. You are experiencing the product of our organization as you read and glance through the memories. The Epitome offers students hands-on experience in business, production, photography, editing, graphics and organizational skills. We have business managers, section editors, photographers, copy-editors, two managing editors, an editor-at-large and, of course, our editor-in-chief.

Much work was accomplished this year, and we won't soon forget the late night brainstorming sessions leading to tangents on existentialism, campus happenings, love, shoes, Paris, internships and fashion.

IACOCCA SCHOLARS

The Iacocca Scholars Program, conducted by the Iacocca Institute, offers outstanding students, in all disciplines, an extraordinary opportunity to enrich their education and leadership experience. Iacocca Scholars enhance their leadership and teamwork skills through group activities and custom-tailored internships with business and industry, government or nonprofit organizations. Scholars meet about twice a month for dinner, discussions, field trips and interaction with visiting executives. They also work on creative projects with faculty mentors, developing close working relationships.

Sports

Lehigh athletics has a lot to be proud of this year. Many teams overcame adversity to triumph. Others showed the promise and growing pains of young players.

The women's basketball team won the Patriot League Championship. Many young players, guided by senior leadership, were vital to the team's success. Congratulations!

The field hockey team, under first year coach Michelle Finegan, and the men's swimming and diving team both finished second in the Patriot League.

Wrestling, with an 11-9 record, finished second in the EIWA tournament. This feat is impressive considering the relative youth of this year's team.

The men's soccer team (9-6-2) and the football team, who beat Lafayette, both prevailed over injuries and had strong seasons to show for it. The soccer team has been improving steadily over the last two years, and the football team is returning many starters next year. So watch out!

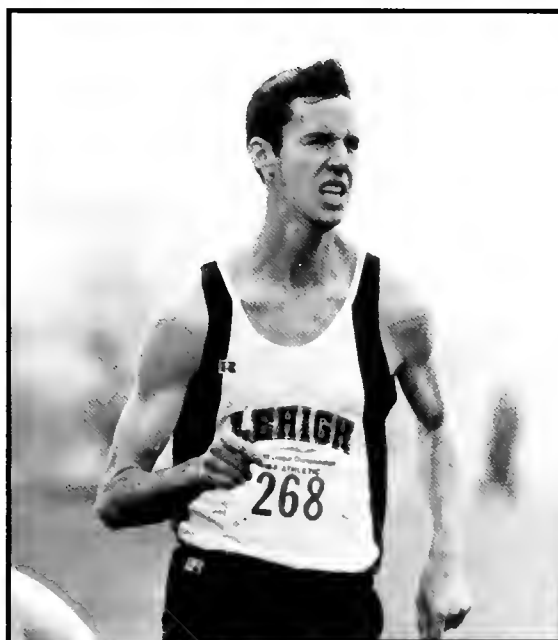

Lehigh's other teams are all young and talented. The women's swimming and diving team finished 3rd in the Patriot League. The men's cross country team won many close meets. The women's soccer team was led by two junior captains. The women's cross country team stayed competitive even with many new faces, and the volleyball team looks forward to improving next season.

"I think the game was a summation of the season. We fought through injuries and adversity and never quit. I think it's a tribute to our 14 seniors and the character of this team."--Head Coach Kevin Higgins, following the Lafayette game.

The 1996 team faced adversity, then bounced back with a vengeance in its win over Lafayette in the season finale. The win spoiled any Lafayette hopes of a share in the Patriot League title and showed Lehigh fans just how much guts and determination the players in the program have. As this year's senior class looks back, they can be proud of two Patriot League Championships and three Lafayette wins. The season opener versus Delaware left the team with several injuries, adding new faces to the offense for the remainder of the season. Despite these changes, the players adapted and excelled in their new positions. Quad-captain, Mark Miller, one of the most respected and hardest hitters in the league, joined with fellow captain and linebacker, Lance Eckenrode, to lead a defense that added a new dimension to the traditionally pass-oriented Lehigh teams. Senior All-American punter, Ben Talbott finished his career with a 43-yd average and completed the season ranked 2nd in I-AA in the nation. Doug Yates and Brian Bartelle earned All-League 1st Team honors, as did Sunderland, Miller and Talbott.

Despite this lack of experience, the Engineers were able to excel. Some of the season's highlights were the 19-44 win over Colgate and a competitive meet versus Rider

College, in which the Engineers won by only one point in a home meet. Other exciting home meets were against Richmond, Towson State and St. Francis. Lehigh beat Richmond 19-42 and Towson State 16-47. The addition of several talented freshmen aided the team's success and suggests a bright future.

In a strong start with a home victory against Patriot League rival Colgate and Rider College, Lehigh swept the top two places led by sophomore Ellen Cogswell and junior co-captain Stacy Imler. They followed this run with another strong performance at the Penn State Invitational where the Engineer team placed third. Lehigh struggled in its annual dual meet against Lafayette and again at the Paul Short Invitational held on Lehigh's Goodman Campus. However, a few individuals including Kori Shafer-Kzesicki, Jennifer Middleton and Lisa Jones showed some promise. Lehigh was victorious in a home four-way meet, defeating Towson State, University of Richmond and St. Francis College, despite deplorable conditions. The season culminated in a 5th place finish in the Patriot League Championships. It was a disappointing end to an inconsistent season, but with many juniors on the squad, there will be a strong focus to succeed in the 1997 season.

This was a rebuilding season as the team lost a setter to graduation and their best all-around player to transfer. The Engineers also played under a new coach, John Gump. Being a young and inexperienced team, they experienced a roller coaster season. Some highlights were the competitive matches against UPenn, Harvard and Drexel. A home match versus Bucknell, which resulted in a five game Lehigh victory, drew a large crowd. Despite a four game loss to Seton Hall at home, the Engineers played extremely well. The team struggled all year to "get over the hump" and pull out the big win as opposed to the tough loss, but the late season loss of starting middle hitter, Kim Freedman, and the lack of team chemistry prevented them from reaching their goals.

Graduation brings the loss of Ana-Lucia Silveira, a strong blocker and hitter, as well as an emotional leader. With a year of experience under their belts and promising freshmen, however, the future looks bright. Co-captain, Danna Gombocz was 2nd team All League and co-defensive player of the year. Several returning players were in the top five in the league in offensive and defensive categories.

Captains, junior Bill Closson (Hwt) and sophomore Chris Ayres (142), had particularly good seasons, finding success at the Mat Town Invitational, the Sheridan Tournament and the EIWA Championships. With the help of these skilled leaders and a team full of talented wrestlers, Lehigh placed 2nd at the EIWA Tournament. One of the season's highlights was the final home match versus UPenn, in which a 25th ranked Lehigh upset #11 UPenn, 22-15. The Lehigh women's swim team had a very successful season, with an impressive record. Lehigh had only lost two point-scorers from last year's team, so with the help of a great incoming freshman class and extremely talented upperclassmen, the team was quite strong. The top scorers this season were senior co-captain, sprint freestyler, Casey Bahrenburg, along with freshman backstroker, Jess Weathers. Other high scorers included senior co-captain, Cheryl Dede, sophomores, Michelle Pealer, Tanya Barone, Allison Jurey, Heather Hansz and Beth Matonak. Freshmen, Traci Rickert, Jana Clark, Lynne Fuller, Meredith Hughes and Julie Paulsen were also very successful in their first season. The women placed third at the Patriot League Championships and 8th at the ECAC Championships. With the experience and leadership of the group, Lehigh expected a big season, and that is what they got. Head Coach Chris Marshall said, "This particular team is the best group I have ever coached at Lehigh, and they are going to only get better in the years to come."

Living

Living. It's what we all do. Regardless of where we come from or what our majors are, we all live together. Each of us can think back and remember the first time we referred to Lehigh as "home." Although our mothers didn't like it, we knew that Lehigh had become our home away from home, a place where we could grow and mature like no other place before. A place where we all belong.

There are many different places to live at Lehigh, including residence halls, fraternities, sororities, apartments and houses. While these places are all different, they are also the same in that we live in them with our friends. We share duties, chores and bills. We have common memories of things we have done and people we have seen.

Everyone can remember walking up and down the hill freshman year to classes, the squirrels that seem to be everywhere, getting locked out of our rooms, 4 o'clocks and realizing that our summer savings wouldn't go as far as we thought they would. What we remember most, though, is our friends. After all of the tests are graded and the papers are turned in, after all of the cramming and stressful evenings are done, the most important thing we will remember about our home here at Lehigh is laughing, crying and living with our friends.

Living. It's what we all do.

To smile at the memories of our college days,

We all have changed together in a plethora of ways.

College days will live forever engraved within our hearts,

We cling onto our friendships as a new life is to start.

Our someday now has met us as graduation winks good-bye,

The journey now continues as our goals will meet the sky.

As we now reach new horizons never before been seen,

Experience of life have turned to memories that gleam.

Throughout the maturation of our bonding times,

We learned to change the "I" to "We" forever in our minds.

We met freshman year wishing to belong,

To a group to call our own, friendships to grow strong.

The blossoms of our friendships will bloom throughout our lives,

Even in the years to come the petals will survive.

What we must remember, though, as way will lead to way.

The gift of friends lies in the root of every shining day.

We gave light to each one's darkness and found love within our hearts,

No mountain, sea, nor ocean could ever tear the love we share apart.

No longer strangers to ourselves, we embark upon our path,

Remember every story, tear, and smile that has made us laugh,

To find warmth and strength through the memories of our college days,

We have all changed together, blossoming in a plethora of ways.

Gamma Phi Beta's Pledge Class of 24!

IN TWENTY YEARS...

Carrie Hubbell: president of SEI, married to Jim Ward, with whom she shares the trophy for the Bay Head Yacht Club doubles championships. Eve R. blooming in Los Angeles, married to a tall, dark & handsome actor. She is still contemplating whether she should order a tuna fish sandwich or a tuna salad. Cristen Furtaw: after finally taking over Bertucci's Restaurant, she married a dentist and together they invented a mouthwash that immediately removes from the breath. Jen Callahan: international surfer/skate boarder extraordinaire; she spends the summers in the Cape and the winters "Down Under" with a "wicked cool" husband who is a sailer as well as a lacrosse player. Alexis Ohls: living in Manhattan & married to a dark, handsome gent who drives a BMW is very happy. However, she still frequently talks to "Tara". Casey Bahrenburg: married to a tall, lanky, Aussie swimmer. She just recently relocated to San Francisco, where she is still dressing up in costumes and still making phony phone calls. Sarah Kennedy: still driving The Beast, she lives a life on the lam in the city of San Francisco. She is also married to an Irish Catholic man who likes non-lint materials. Megan Saunders: famous author of the best-selling books "How to get out of anything, anytime, anywhere, anyplace" and "1,000,000 excuses". Sharon Bucko: trying to convince her husband to take on her last name, while still trying to convince everyone her first name is Sharon. Lauri Kjar: finally won the 33 million dollar lotto, but lost the lottery ticket. Dana R. personal fitness trainer promoting her new exercise tape "How to get abs the Strong Island Way". Megan Dubbs: professional roller-blader searching for the perfect mate. Jessica Ottinger: on tour debuting her new CD "Potty Mouth" with Adam Sandler. Sarah Stewart: after moving to Iraq to become Saddam Hussein's peace coordinator, she spends her free time still pranking people as the "Tequila Man". Lisa Netcher: married to an 80 year old oil tycoon awaiting death...and her third breast implant surgery. Laura Beine: still beach tagging & working at Uncle Bill's in quest for the perfect ice cream cone. Ardis Semprumph: proprietor of the 1st gourmet Italian delite tanning salon on the Southside. Adrienne Gallo: member of the architectural society reconstructing the Leaning Tower of Pisa. Joy K. Cooper: due to vocal cord over-usage currently awarded closed-caption woman of the year.

Roastin' the PIG.

Theta Xi

Eta Chapter

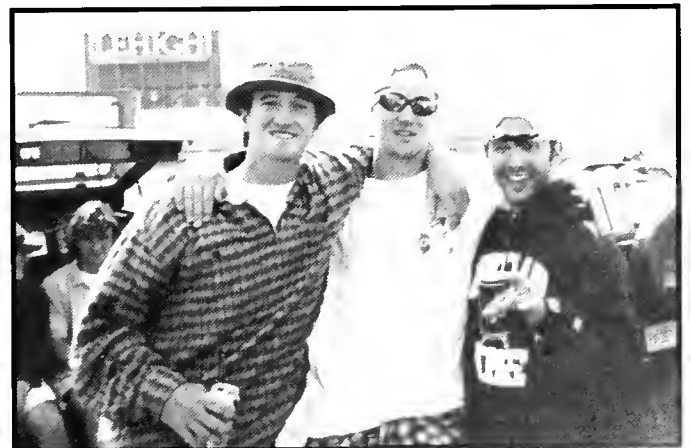

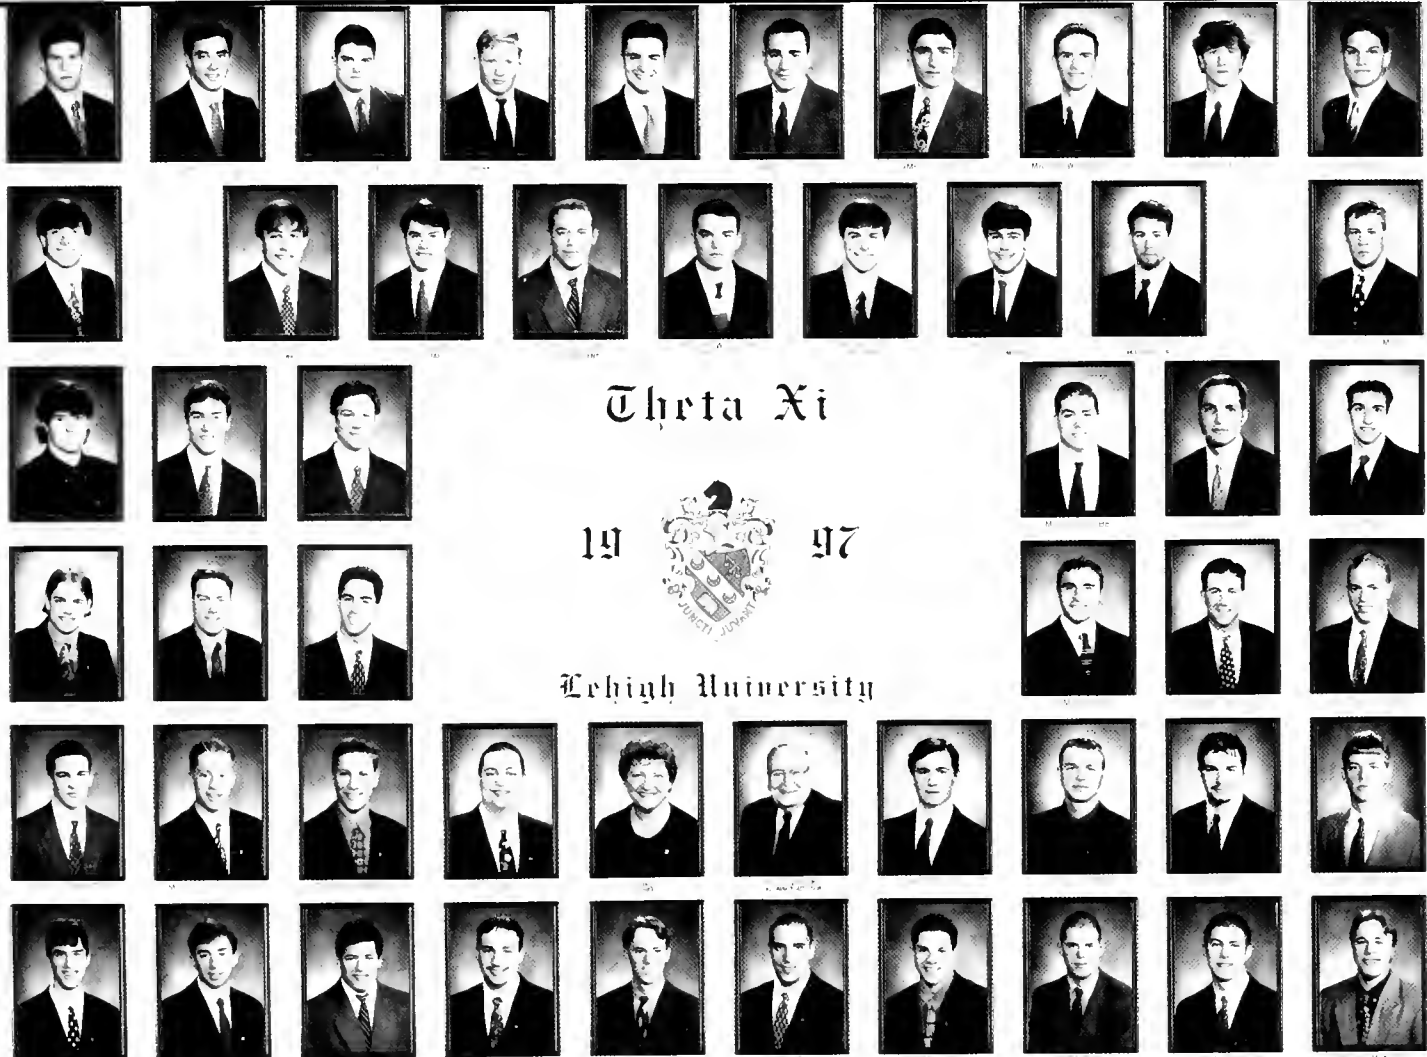

Having fun at Theta Xi Formal!

There are many things that Theta Xi had to be thankful for this year: Lesbians and kiss your friend, Beirut, tailgates, brunches, stackings, Mardi Gras, South Padre, getting weird at Polk Street, Barnaby Cloud, lack of Gay Cliff, C'Mon Eta, Kaiser, Bayou Hill, P.S. We are thankful that Brother Burglar and his $15,000 bond made it home from Mardi Gras. We are thankful for our senior class, under whose leadership and guidance we achieved the level of excellence to which Theta Xi is now accustomed to--Dominic: the king of mediocrity, can we still give Tony a bid, Burton #2, sweet off campus house, 2 coaches, 2 T.A.'s, and a 1/2 Portuguese loser--Donnelly: Don Dons, Spud Face, Nancy, "Why don't girls like me?", the last living Lehigh virgin--Condela: Lurp, pencil penetration, get Jen's hands out of our pants, diarrhea in the hall, I heard Phi Kaps are better--Psaki: abnormally large, optional, red wings, D. Phi or die--Nayor: psychopathic stalker, 24 hour Colby, 24 hour Hohmann--Glogoza: hot pockets, contagious, still got his box of condoms from sophomore year---Avi: smoke dog, January's pinning party, South Padre, cut-throat, addict, Knuckle Deep A.S.--Fletcher: sweet lou, pissing on HARVEY, wish I was a Zete, can't close deal A.C. & L.K., oil can--Crawford: Fish, The Sir, CRAWDADIDY, sameer's "good" friend, 2nd best goalie--Keller: CANDY, POWDER, sulfur ass, "very small, sharp teeth", pencil package, practically family with Hinton & Quirk--Flood: "she was nice, we had a good time", Ron's sweet heart, hairy nipples, honorary ACW--Dyner: Lurch, Burglar, Squirrel, $15,000 bail, "where's my package"-confiscated, "That's my worst."--Vroman: Harke and gay love, Connecticut hillbilly, cock-block, Nicole pinned you!, Tufts' loss is our pain.

And to the rest of the house, to whom the torch is passed--Leo: "I have a gardner snake, and I need a predator in my pants"--Purdy: "You drank a cup of piss for 30 dollars?--R.J.: Bert, girl phone whore, grab ass supreme, electricians, sloppy seconds--Carter: huh?-what?--Dawkins: what can you say- all-state liar, "Aw God Al, they put a shirt in my bed", sex in public pools, Dawkins & Dabbs=$5,000 betting--Dabbs: 1st ever cut from IX L.M. Football, the hospital is a refuge for cut lacrosse players, Vroman, Harke, Barber & Dawkins--CBASS: get the ferretts out of your ass, Caffrey is either going to boom, go to Atlantic City, or Castle Hill with Zetes, Batcha is the hobbit, "This is my pet dollar."--Lafuira: we will never stop the grab ass--Special Esh: "keep being definately cool-FOR REAL", Fat Scott is an a-sexual man--Dimig: what did you do to Tuohey? "P" on me!

Congratulations Seniors--Good luck next year ---TX-DUDE, WE'RE STILL STOMPIN NECK---P.S.-DON'T DRINK THE MILK

Seniors

After four years of hearing our elders lecture on how quickly college goes by, we are now leaving. As we go, we find ourselves telling those younger than us how quickly our own time at Lehigh passed, and wondering where the time went.

It seems like only a short time ago we were graduating from high school and imagining what Lehigh had in store for us. Now we have experienced it. Our time as undergraduates has come to an end.

We are off to new lives, chasing our dreams and finding our way in the world. Though our paths now separate and our eyes seem to look only to the future, in the years ahead we will look back upon our shared time at Lehigh; feeling a gentle tug on our hearts that draws us back to the days when we discovered all the world had to offer us, and all we had to offer the world.

For now, though, the world is ours. The future lies invitingly before us, beckoning us ever onward. We have a fresh start to make, one which we can embrace with hope and confidence, having faith in our ability to make the world a little better than when it was given to us, just as we made Lehigh a little better than it was when given to us.

Jenn Gianni and James Condela: all dressed up and nowhere to go!

Remember When. . .

- 1) We only had one U.C.
- 2) Brownies were something you ate or joined.
- 3) People 'dated' for more than Friday or Saturday night and knew each other's names.
- 4) We got the deluxe parking attendants with Robo-cop computer attachments and everybody felt safe.
- 5) Student loans gave you money instead of demanding it.

Students who take part in Mardi Gras festivities are sure to have smiles on their faces.

Top 10 Reasons You Chose Lehigh

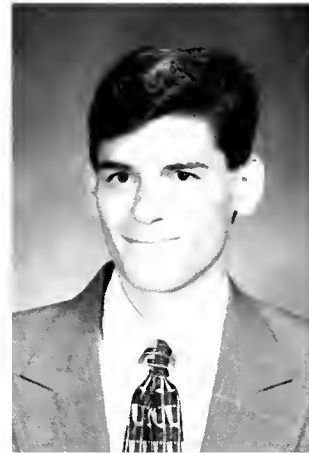

- 10) Cool school colors.
- 9) Original, yet popular, school nickname- Engineers/ Mountainhawks/those drunks on the Hill who used to have a bell as a mascot.
- 8) WLVR- "Your Rick Springfield connection."
- 7) Wanted a pair of the "Lehigh Legs" promised by your tour guide.
- 6) The creative and vibrant dating scene.
- 5) The friendly, outgoing people.
- 4) The stained glass sunroof in Linderman.
- 3) The intellectual stimulation.
- 2) The safe, activity-packed, college town of South Bethlehem.
- 1) Wanted an Epitome of your very own.

Closing

At the close of the 1996-97 school year, we reflect on the good times we've had at Lehigh. This is a book filled with four years of memories for the class of 1997. The friends we have made and the experiences we have shared will never be forgotten. Though the road ahead is uncertain, we have learned that we can count on our friends and ourselves. Still, as we leave behind the serenity of Lehigh's campus, we realize we will always cherish our college years.

Our freshman year now seems so far away. We have changed so much since then. That year was filled with many "firsts"—leaving home, living with a roommate, making new friends, experiencing the Hill, Greek Week and Lehigh/Lafayette. Memories from that first year have grown sweeter with time. We will always cherish these experiences, for our college years went by so fast.

In times to come we will smile when thinking of all-night cram sessions, coffee runs to Wawa and 2 a.m. conversations with brothers, sisters, roommates and friends. Some things we remember will make us smile, some will make us cry. But one thing we know is that the web we've woven at Lehigh is filled with memories that will last a lifetime!

Dear Kyra,

You have always been your own person.

You sing your own songs,-

You live your own story with a beautiful, spirited spark,

And you do it all so well!

You have all the answers tucked right there in your heart,

So let it be your guide and anchor.

Just know that we will always be there,

To love you, to celebrate your successes,-

And, if you need us, to catch you when you stumble.

We are so proud of you!

Love you,

Mom, Dad & Skylar

To our son Brian Flood,

Congratulations! We finally made it! Your Lehigh years have given us the greatest pride two parents could ever have. You're a very special person. Remember always in your heart- Dad will be guiding you through life always.

Love,

An Ode to Linda G

When Linda was a little girl
Her long brown hair would always curl
She would run and romp and play in the grass
She could sometimes be a pain in the _____

At home she had a cat named Billy
Who always acted very silly
She worked very hard while in school
And thought that college would be really cool

She developed a plan in which it was clear
She would go to Lehigh to be an engineer
She packed her bags and to Lehigh she went
And many of her parents' dollars she spent

During four years of long, hard study
Even when the weather was cruddy
She went to class and seldom was tardy
And sometimes took time out to party

The hard work has paid off and it's time to cheer
CONGRATULATIONS LINDA,
YOU'RE AN ENGINEER!

Editor-in-Chief

Enjoy this yearbook. It is not only a memoir of our past year together at Lehigh as colleagues and as a staff, but a reminder of all our dedication and hard work which made the completion of this book possible. You all did a great job. Good luck to those of you who will be returning to help with the publication of next year's book. And lastly, a special thanks to our Josten's Rep., Phil Klein and of course, Linda Lipko whose support and guidance as advisor made my year as editor-in-chief a memorable and enjoyable experience.
